PSCI 3328 - Attendance

Introduction

- What we learned:
  - Definition of power
  - Hard vs. Soft power
  - Powers can be undermined by lack of stability
- Divide yourselves into 9 big groups (on eLearning and email), class divided in 9 areas (top China, middle India, bottom Nigeria)

Activity: Maximizing Power

Activity: Maximizing Power

In this room are three countries' policy advisory teams

One team works for Chinese President Xi Jinping

One team works for Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi

One team works for Nigerian President Bola Tinubu

Activity: Maximizing Power

- 3 teams for each country (nine teams total)
- One team for each country discusses ways to maximize your country's hard power
- One team discusses ways to maximize your country's soft power
- One team discusses ways to solve internal sources of vulnerability (e.g., inequality, discrimination, anything that undermines national stability...)
- The full country teams then come together to come up with a smart power strategy to present

Goal: Give the Leader a set of policies to maximize country's power

Main instructions

1. Each within-country team produces its strategy, including some context (i.e., situation, biggest issues...) (25 mins)
2. 3 country teams come together to allocate resources across 3 strategies. Elect the leader, who will talk and have final say/decision (15 mins)
3. Each team will present your final allocation to the class as a whole and the leaders of China, India, Nigeria will ask you questions
4. The country team that devises the most clever and impactful strategy will receive a bonus on their participation grade for today's class (vote from me, TA, and not-involved presidents will give a preference)

How to get resources

- CIA World Factbook
- Country name + “Foreign policy” or “foreign relations” on Wikipedia
- US news and World Report “Best countries” rankings
- Search for major political issues in the country
